Held every three years, the IUAPPA World Clean Air and Environmental Protection Congress is the leading international gathering of air pollution specialists. The Congress provides a forum for environmental protection specialists in both industrialized and newly emerging industrialized countries to exchange information, to develop relationships with other professionals from around the world, and to learn from each other.

IUAPPA was founded in 1964 to encourage professional organizations to share solutions to environmental challenges. Through information exchange and partnership, IUAPPA hopes to minimize the environmental impacts of growth in both emerging and developed economies.

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The 2010 IUAPPA Congress theme of "Achieving Environmental Sustainability in a Resource Hungry World" recognizes the need for holistic management approaches to effectively mitigate potential water, food, energy and environmental challenges. This Congress will bring together specialists from academia, industry, consulting, environmental advocacy groups and government to present innovative ways to improve air quality, reduce greenhouse gas emissions and minimize environmental impacts. The program will examine international, national and local-scale issues facing both emerging and developed economies.

Surrounded by breathtaking natural beauty, Vancouver is recognized as one of the world's most livable cities, renowned for its innovative programs and leadership in sustainability, accessibility and inclusivity. Visitors will enjoy multi-cultural dining and entertainment, outdoor adventure, world class shopping, spectacular sights and attractions. We also encourage delegates to take pre- or post- conference day trips to the picturesque Resort Municipality of Whistler or a late season cruise to Alaska.

THE EXHIBITION

Exhibitors will spend three days interfacing with attendees interested in learning more about air monitoring and analysis, control systems, consultant expertise and cleaner production initiatives. Over 500 participants are expected to come from approximately 35 different nations especially from Oceania, Asia, North America, Europe and a smaller number from Africa. This is your chance to meet with qualified buyers face-to-face.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?

As an exhibitor of this event we will provide you with:

- The opportunity to showcase your corporate image through demonstrated support for improvement of air quality and mitigation of global warming.
- Access to delegates from more than 35 countries.
- The opportunity to promote and demonstrate your product or service to more than 500 national and international professionals who work with air quality.
- Personal access to international leaders and to the other delegates through formal and informal gatherings and via your exhibition display.
- The opportunity to build an international profile among the public sectors and with influential decision makers.
